By Edward Milton Foote, A. M., M. D., instructor in Surgery, College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia University), and lecturer on Surgery, New York Polyclinic Medical School. Visiting Surgeon, New York City and St. Joseph's Hospitals; Consulting Surgeon Randall's Island Hospitals and Schools; formerly Chief in Surgery at the Vanderbilt Clinic.

This MINOR SURGERY treats of the everyday operations of surgical practice, those problems in surgery which are not adequately discussed in the works which take cognizance of the more serious conditions. MINOR SURGERY forms the bulk of the surgical practice of the General Practitioner and still its importance is not recognized in the curriculum of our medical schools.
